A-LEVEL SOCIOLOGY

It allows us to understand individual problems in their proper social context and reflect upon the ways in which everyday life, such as family relationships, education, and work, are conditioned by forms of social organisation and social systems.

Topics students will cover include socialisation, culture and identity, social differentiation, power and stratification, crime and deviance, and research methods.

Students who are curious and open minded will benefit greatly from this course as it allows students to critically examine the collective ideas, shared behaviours and social forces that shape our everyday lives, and explore societies and cultures different from our own. There for it complements our range of Art based A-Levels as it allows learners to think in a way that varies from their own thinking.

On successful completion of an A-Level programme of study, which includes this course, you will have the skills and qualifications needed to progress onto a wide range of courses at foundation or degree level, or go directly into industry employment.

A fascinating range of topics that will give students an insight into socialisation, culture and identity.
