

Start your creative career with The Northern School of Art

THE Northern School of Art (formerly Cleveland College of Art and Design) has been offering specialist art and design education and training to creative individuals and nurturing the talents of Tees Valley artists, designers and producers since the 1870s.

Our focus is on providing students with the knowledge and skills needed to succeed in the creative industries.

We are proud of all our alumni, who include notable names ranging from David Coverdale, the lead singer of Deep Purple and Whitesnake, to Sir Ridley Scott, director of Bladerunner, Gladiator, and House of Gucci, and film maker Jeanie Finlay whose distinctive documentaries include Game of Thrones: The Last Watch and Sound It Out.

The school leads the way for art and design education in the region, catering for creatives from the age of six up to masters' level with a unique and varied number of course options. Our talented academic team members are also practitioners in their own specialist areas, and maintain close links with the creative sector.

Our Middlesbrough town centre campus offers a range of courses including Saturday Club and Arts Award classes for six to 16 year olds and A-Level, UAL Diploma, Foundation Diploma and Access to Higher Education courses to support students on their path to creative higher education.

Our Hartlepool campus provides creative undergraduate and masters' degrees supported with the highest quality of art and design teaching.

Students benefit from high contact time, specialist support and career and business coaching to allow them to achieve their full potential, not only as artists or designers but as business professionals.

Students at the school are not confined to their course areas. We encourage them to explore, working with other specialists across a range of subject areas as collaboration across disciplines is key to success in the creative industries.

We encourage students to view themselves as a practising creative from day one.

They quickly become a valued member of a community passion-
